Pallottine Foundation awards over $2.5 million in Healthy Communities grants to 164 local nonprofits

HUNTINGTON, W.Va. – The Pallottine Foundation of Huntington has awarded 164 nonprofit organizations in the tristate with grants totaling $2,572,458.91 through its 2025 Healthy Communities Initiative. The annual initiative provides funding awards up to $40,000 for programs that address health and wellness challenges in the Foundation's 20-county, tristate region.

"The Pallottine Sisters established our Foundation with a vision to help and heal people in the community," said Laura Boone, CEO of the Pallottine Foundation of Huntington. "The level of support we are able to provide this year on their behalf is truly incredible. These funds will enable our partners to continue providing essential services and offer new programs that promote health and serve those in need. We can't wait to see all the positive change that results from this important work."

This year's Healthy Communities recipients include food assistance programs, child advocacy centers, mental and behavioral health programs, health departments, senior centers, family resource and support networks, substance use disorder recovery programs, community centers, and shelters for people experiencing domestic violence or homelessness.

About the Pallottine Foundation of Huntington
The Pallottine Foundation of Huntington was established in 2018 following the sale of St. Mary's Medical Center to continue the Pallottine Missionary Sisters' legacy of caring for the spiritual, emotional and physical health of the community. The Foundation supports nonprofit organizations in 20 counties across West Virginia, Kentucky, and Ohio through the funding of projects and initiatives that focus on health and wellness, food insecurity, mental and behavioral health, substance use disorder, capacity building, and tobacco use prevention and cessation.
